Four young people were nominated for the award this year.

We would like to acknowledge their achievements.

Cassandra Reed, from Whitton Phab

Cassandra, 16 has been involved with Hounslow and is now a key volunteer at Whitton Phab Club which is in its infancy, Cassandra is hoping to train as a youth worker for the club, and is always available to offer support.

Dean Brown, from Wrexham

Dean is nearly 14 and despite his health problems is a great asset to the club

Katie Smith, from Kenilworth

Katie is 25 and organises fund raising events for the club including recently a Gang show. She also organises the events programme and is a very valuable member of the team.

This year's winner of the Louis Goldberg Award for Young people is

Gemma Davies of Chippenham 16-30 Phab Club.

Gemma joined the club several years ago as support for her sister who was helping as part of her college course.

Since then, she has become an integral part of the club, helping members in everything they do. She has become involved, raising funds and organising craft sessions. Gemma is also working and attending Bath University, so her free time is precious, but she never misses a meeting.

She has also helped Kathy Hancock in the craft sessions at the South West Conference and has helped with Phab holidays, giving up her own holiday to attend.

She is a great ambassador for the Phab , and is an inspiration to others.
